Most Notable Success: The best thing was the support and close working relationship we had with the District. The Ranger and Resource Advisor attended every planning meeting and briefing, and were always available to answer questions or give us input. They were also a great help in producing maps from their GIS shop. The lesson is: develop a good relationship with the host agency and encourage them to participate.

Most Difficult Challenges: The local Dispatch Center (Rawlins) is new. We found that we had to double check and follow up on orders more than we would have to normally with a more experienced center. Once we realized that, we made a point to communicate with them to ensure we got what we needed. Also, we were not familiar with the hierarchy of the fire organization on the Medicine Bow-Routt NF. Fortunately we were able to work closely with the district.
